STAGEFRIGHT AND STEVENS' LAW

A Study

by

Malcolm Brenner
Department of Psychology
Ohio State University

Presented at Eastern Psychological Association
Convention
April, 1974

Abstract:

Twenty-four introductory speech students recited a poem before 0, 2, 8, or 22 spectators, and recordings of the performances were analyzed for physiological vocal stress. As predicted, by applying Stevens' Law to social facilitation theory, arousal before a passive audience increased as a power function of audience size.